By the View which this Polar Map of the Artic Ocean presents in all its parts, and the English Coast, New Britain, and Náuverland, the south side of the strait of Bering, and other parts of the coast of Asia, and the West Indies, it is evident that the discovery of a north-west passage from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific will be of great advantage to the British Trade and Navigation.

Dedicated to Mr. D. H. B. K.

The Author of this Map, with an accurate description of the Northern Ocean, and the North-West Passage, has the honour of being the first to publish so important a work, which will be of great utility to the British Navy and Commerce.

No. 108.